Campus Help is a resource for providing users guidance in understanding and using the Campus system. Through the various learning methods provided, we hope Campus Help makes Campus easier to use and reveals new and exciting ways to use the product.

Access Campus Help

Select the question mark icon in the upper right-hand corner of Campus (Image 1). All help articles related to the tool which the user was using at the time they pressed the question mark icon display in a separate window. This includes both custom articles created by the district (District Defined Help) as well as videos, simulations, and documentation created by Campus (Infinite Campus Defined Help).

Available Content Types

Campus Help provides several content types to use when learning about Campus. The sections below describe each available content type and how to identify each type within search results.

Hover the mouse cursor over each icon to view the corresponding content type.

Content Type	Example
Documentation	Documentation articles appear with a book icon next to the header. □
Video	Videos appear with a play button icon next to the header. □

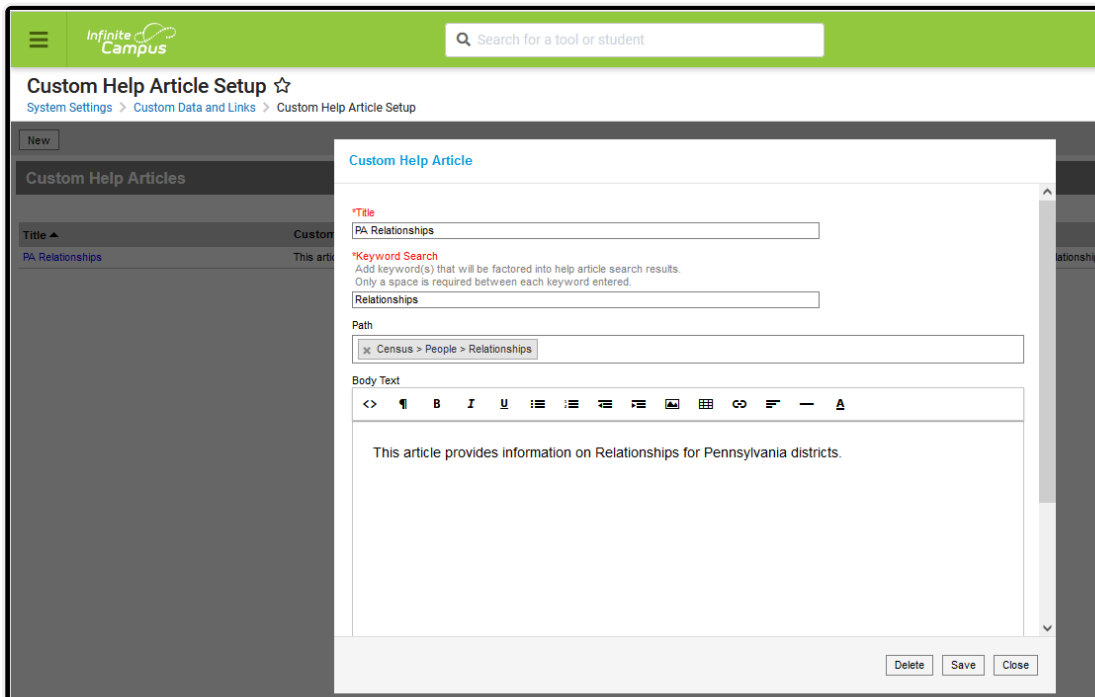

Content Type	Example
Simulation	Simulations appear with a finger button icon next to the header. □
District-Defined Help	District-defined help articles items appear with a D button icon next to the header. □
State-Defined Help	State-defined help articles items appear with a S button icon next to the header. Custom help articles created at the state level are not available for district users as they are not published down from state to district. □

Create Custom Help Articles

Using the Custom Help Articles tool, users can create their own help articles which are available for all users within their district. Enter text and images using the WYSIWYG editor, then align the custom article with a specific Campus tool.

For more information about creating and managing custom help articles, see the Custom Help Articles page.

Custom Help Articles

Once a custom help article is created and saved, users can access it via the District Defined Help section of help text search results.

Custom help articles made at the state-level display in the State Defined Help section. Custom help articles created at the state level are not available for district users as they are not published down from state to district.
