Tool Search: Home School

The Home School tool allows users to record and track students whose families have chosen home education. In North Dakota, home education is defined as a program of education supervised by a child's legal guardian. The legal guardian is responsible for selecting materials, determining an educational philosophy, and overseeing the method, manner, and delivery of instruction.

- If a student is home-schooled, they must be enrolled in their residential district and assigned a home-school program. FTE on the enrollment should be left blank.
- If the student is taking any courses through the public school, they should be enrolled in the corresponding school calendar with the homeschool start status, and an FTE should be filled out. The "district" school enrollment should be end-dated when this occurs.
